Participation conditions

Intergenerational initiatives Contest

2023 Quebec Intergenerational Week

Who can participate?

The contest is open to organizations, institutions or individuals that have implemented an activity or project that promotes intergenerational connections.

Organizations that are for-profit, political or proselyte, or that discriminate on the basis of age, origin, sex or religion are excluded.

What are the criteria?

To be eligible for the contest, an initiative must have taken place between April 2022 and March 2023, on a one-time, occasional or regular basis, and:

1. Directly reach at least two generations not from the same family,
2. contribute to the improvement of the quality of life,
3. generate measurable social benefits,
4. be reproducible elsewhere and by others,
5. fight against isolation or encourage participation in civic life,
6. foster social connection, engagement, inclusion or learning.

Initiatives that involve the most vulnerable or marginalized people will be favored.

A project can not compete if it has been awarded in the two years preceding this edition of the contest. Former winners may, however, submit a different project.

Intergénérations Québec reserves the right to not select a project if the submitted application does not meet these criteria or lack of clarity.
